What is consent?

Consent is another word for permission.

We need to ask for permission for some things and give permission for others, when we're online as well as offline.

Let's look at some examples...

When do we need consent with friends?

It's important to check how people feel about an action before you do it.

Can you think of any other online examples like this?

Why do organisations sometimes ask you for consent?

Sometimes organisations will ask permission before they do something that might affect you or your account – for example, collecting your personal information.

Can you think of any other online examples like this?

Making positive choices

Asking for and giving permission is an opportunity to make a choice about your life online.

You have the power to make a positive choice but that choice could take many forms.

Think about the questions on the next few slides, what do you think is the right choice for each one?

Permission Mission

You're signing up for a new online gaming account when you're given the following choice.

Our internet, our choice

If something makes you worried, uncomfortable or upset it's always okay to say no.

If you're sure you're happy with what will happen next then it's okay to say yes.

If what you're doing online might affect somebody else, always ask their permission first.

If you're unsure or need further support then speak to an adult for help and advice.
